Moodle is an open-source software designed to help educators and administrators create online courses for adaptive and customized learning. Many leading institutes today have adopted this system to make learning more accessible through online mode.

The pandemic has led to digital learning emerge as a significant mode of teaching learning process due to which our acquaintance with this system is expected to be beneficial for the participants as it will enable us to make online learning more effective and accessible. On this positive note, I would like to extend my best wishes to the participants and team members from Spoken Tutorials, IIT Bombay.
